Delora Ng Jee Deputy Comptroller for Large Banks

In June 1997, Delora Ng Jee was selected as one of the three deputy comptrollers for Large Bank Supervision at the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), headquartered in Washington, D.C.

The Large Bank Supervision Group is responsible for the largest and most complex national banking companies. In addition to oversight of the OCC's London office, Ms. Jee's large bank portfolio spans the United States. She is also a member of the OCC's National Risk Committee and Functional Supervision Working Group.

Ms. Jee joined the OCC in 1978 as a field examiner based in Dallas. Since then, she has held numerous bank supervision positions with the OCC, including field examiner in London, England; manager of Supervisory Analysis in the agency's Multinational Banking Division in Washington; examiner-in-charge of the OCC's London office, which supervises branches of U.S. national banks located in Europe; and examiner-in-charge of the Chase Manhattan Corporation's national banking operations. While examiner-in-charge of the Chase Manhattan Corporation, Ms. Jee was a voting member of the Interagency Country Exposure Review Committee.

From February 1995 to June 1997, she was deputy comptroller of the OCC's Western District, and was responsible for supervising national banks in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California, Alaska, Hawaii and Guam.

Ms. Jee holds a bachelor's of arts in managerial studies and economics from Rice University in Houston, Texas.
